

Asian American Documentaries

at the

APRIL 3-10, 2014

Support Asian American film at the Wisconsin Film Festival by checking out these three Asian American documentaries. Tickets are $5 for students and are available online at <http://guide.wifilmfest.org/2014> or by phone at 608-265-2933.

This documentary traces the extraordinary life of Asian American activist Grace Lee Boggs, who is known for her landmark work on behalf of black communities during the Civil Rights and Black Power movements.

Sat, Apr 05 | 6:30 PM UW Chazen Museum of Art

Sun, Apr 06 | 1:15 PM UW Chazen Museum of Art

This film explores the story of a South Korean couple who let their three-year-old child die while they played online videogames. It provocatively discusses the rise of South Korea as a technological world leader alongside the dangers of internet addiction.

Sat, Apr 05 | 1:15 PM UW Union South Marquee

Danny Lee, co-producer and 2008 UW Alum, scheduled to appear

This energizing and entertaining new documentary shows the seemingly inexhaustible George Takei, now 76 years-old, who rose to prominence with his role as Sulu in Star Trek and has since become an outspoken LGBT advocate and social media guru.

Fri, Apr 04 | 4:30 PM UW Union South Marquee

Sun, Apr 06 | 11:30 AM UW Elvehjem Building

UW-Madison Asian American Studies Program
UW-Madison Communication Arts Department
UW-Madison Arts Institute

